The German Shepherd Dog Club of Minneapolis and St. Paul offers beginning and advanced obedience classes as well as Rally for German Shepherd Dogs.

The goal of the obedience classes is to form a leadership role in team work between human and their canine companion using positive motivation. Dogs naturally want to please their owners, and through training, learn to respect and understand what their owner wants. Obedience training teaches the owner how to communicate with their companion animal to gain that respect. A trained dog should walk quietly at their owner's side on walks, behave at the vet's office, and in general be a good canine citizen that the owner can be proud of wherever they go.

Rally is a relatively new sport in which the human/canine team negotiate a course performing various obedience exercises as they pass signs along a set path. It is a challenge and fun for both dog and owner. Teamwork is emphasized and communication between handler and dog is highly encouraged.
